
These two components explain 83.6 % of the point variability.